BIBLIOMPOWER.....

The Book Club would like to thank Tom Power for our intriguing question and answer book chat concerning Augustine's Confessions. We look forward to his next chat on C.S.Lewis' Mere Christianity.

So much to learn and so many books yet to read!

The February book (Feb. 10th) is Maria Chapdelaine by Louis Hemon, with Linda leading. It seems appropriate to have a French teacher leading the discussion about a novel concerning early Quebec.

It is not necessary to read the book if you think you would like to come and just listen as that is also a good way to soak up new ideas. - Judy

'our [inclusive] land'), which was located in present day northern Quebec, neighbouring Nunavik. They are closely related to Innu People, who call their homeland Nitassina.

The Friendship Circle was full of interesting tidbits this past Monday afternoon and as we watched the snow blowing at the window the hot tea was better than ever. There were eleven of us including Max The Dog. We were happy that Mejas came too. Mejas is known to some of you and is a regular attendee at the Sunday evening Conversation Club. She and her husband are here from Germany. Alan and Louise joined us too. Somebody please tell them to keep coming. They do a good job in raising the comic relief factor.

This is how it worked:

- opening prayer in thankfulness for each other, and we especially remembered our dear friends Marg Boehm and Arpine and Colin Morris.
- we learned two brand new words: Doomscrolling, and nepo-baby. Ask James to tell you what they mean.
- we talked about the ancient Chinese women's language they invented to express themselves when they were seen and not heard. This was in the nineteenth century in Hunan Province. It was called Nushu. (Someone commented "Trust a woman's language to be called New Shoe.") It is interesting to know that it is making a comeback.

We read some of the poetry that we have tried to model after Celtic poems with thanks to a small guide book. I have permission to share some with you so keep reading.

We sang our own favourite hymns with our wonderful pianist Linda.

We chose O Zion Haste, They'll Know We Are Christians, As the Deer and Go Now In Peace.

Our three thankfulness poems are here. They are meant to be simple, small rhymes based on some examples from Celtic Prayers in poem form.

*Lord, I thank you for this day.
Guide me in your way, I pray.
Never let sin me from you stray.
I will do whatever you say.
(Linda M.)*

*Red sunrise spreads east
His welcome to feast.
Sun sinks, east to west.
Goodnight. He offers rest.
In the middle noon appears,
Son of Man holds close our fears.
In days, in moments, through time
Jesus offers the sublime.
(Judy S.)*

*I come to you with thanks abound
For all I see when I look around.
The sky so vast, for birds to fly free,
The earth so deep to root each tree.
Beauty that surrounds us, a sight to behold
We thank you Lord for the gifts yet to unfold.
Please help me to be forever in your praise
As I look upon your Heavenly grace.
(Alison B.)*

There are promises of more poems to come this week. We had a good afternoon together in the freezing temps. We would be happy to see you if you'd like to join us.

The Oak Study Centre has recently moved their office and library into space in our lower level. The Oak Centre is a Christian organization created to encourage a life of the mind and a thoughtful approach to all academic disciplines from a Christian perspective.

The members of St George's will be welcomed to their workshops and guest speakers. Watch for postings.

More of the Funnies – from Linda's friend

'This getting old is a terrible thing. I blacked out for twenty minutes this morning, then I realized I'd put my hoodie on backwards

'Last night my wife asked me if I'd seen the dog bowl. I said I didn't know he could'

'When I was little I didn't care what I wore. I just went along with what my parents chose.

'When I look in old photo albums, I realize that they didn't care either !'

'It's perfectly OK to talk to yourself and it's perfectly OK to answer our self. But it's totally sad that you have to repeat what you said because you weren't listening'

The very definition of 'sweet' best suits the Sunday School choristers who sang Jesus Loves Me two weeks ago for the congregation. There were three of them and four if you count Vessel who toddled up the aisle on his own to stand with his mom.

Thank you to Sabrina for the idea, to Christiana for teaching the children to sing and to Jane for playing the piano for them. Thank you to Ming, Ferdous and Uriel for singing and to Soroush who might like to be in it next time.

Due to popular request they might even be singing again at Easter. What a jolt of joy they brought us.

When other families start to come how the little choir will blossom. It's something to look forward to. It will be interesting to see how this works. The pattern has been laid out and offered up so it will work. - Judy

I recently bought a book of The Major Works of Gerard Manley Hopkins which includes his poems and selected prose.

I must share with you some of his unique thoughts from his sermon on Sunday evening, Nov. 23, 1879 in his church at Bedford Leigh (Greater Manchester, England.)

He has described Jesus in various ways, in different ways from which we usually think of him.

He describes him as "the hero...of the divine Gospels."

He also describes Jesus as a warrior, a conqueror, a King, a statesman, a thinker, an orator, a poet, "the desire of nations," "the greatest genius that ever lived."

He placed his comments in context which I do not have room to do here.

This, below, I thought, summarized Jesus beautifully.

"There met in Jesus Christ all things that can make man lovely and loveable."

adventures: travelling, often incognito, in Soviet Central Asia just before the outbreak of WW II; fighting in the Western Desert campaign, where he specialised in commando raids behind enemy lines; and living rough with Josip Broz Tito and his Yugoslav Partisans while commanding the Maclean Mission there. It is thought that Ian Fleming used Maclean as one of his inspirations for James Bond.
